A vegetable nightcap may be seen in the agricultural museum at Washington. It is the sheath of an immense African flower, and is used by the na-tives as a cap. AROUND THE CAMP

FIGHT AT CHANCELLORSVILLE

Stahl's German Brigade Had No to Repel Attack of Enemy.

In my opinion the Army of the Potomac was never in such fine shape as when Joe Hooker started on the Chancellorsville campaign. It was my fortune at that time to be a member of Co. A, 25th Ohio. Our regiment belonged to McLean's Second brigade, First division, Eleventh corps, writes R. M. Fulton, of Homestead, Pa., in the National Tribune. Our regiment, or at least my company was out on the Plank road on picket on Friday night, and when we were relieved next morning we rejoined the brigade on the line of battle, although there was no fighting going on yet. As we had been on picket all night we stacked arms back in the rear some 200 yards and remained there all day until the engagement began. Our brigade fronted southwest, with our backs toward Fredericksburg. In the early afternoon our colonel, W. P. Richardson, and Col. Lee, of the 55th Ohio, both having seen service in Mexico, sent out three scouts from our company, under Abe lifeed to see what was doing in the heavy timber in front. They came back and reported the enemy massing on our front and right flank. Col. Richardson sent Col. Lee and Capt. E. C. Culp to inform Gen. Devens of our division and ask permission to change front so as to be in shape to meet the assault that they felt sure would come. But Devens took no account of what these offi-cors said Some time later I took a stroll up on the higher ground along the country road. Stabl's German brigade was off a little to the right. Their guns were all stacked, except one regiment. which was standing in line along the road facing the woods at order arms. There were two brass cannons (6 and was never known to blossom has just | 12-pounders) by the read. There were no horses nor artillerymen near the guns. I went back to where my regiment was, and Col. Richardson had sent his scouts out again. That time the enemy's cavalry fired on them. They reported the woods full I onfederates. Col. Richardson sen, Col. Lee and Capt. Culp to Gen. Devens with this information, and again ask ed permission to change front to be in position to meet the enemy. Devens poo-poohed and said: "I guess Col. Richardson is a little scared. The proper place for a colonel is with his command."

In a few minutes I heard one shot. then a whole volley from the regiment of Stahl's brigade that was in line. Then came the terrible onrush of Stonewall Jackson's men, which gave the rest of Stahl's brigade no chance to get their guns, which were stacked as I saw them. I was close to Col. Richardson when Devens' adjutantgeneral came up on a gallop. He said: "Col. Richardson, Gen. Devens sends regards and orders you to double-quick your regiment into line and check that stampeds."

We double-quicked up the hill and into the young pines, but the smoke was so thick we could scarcely see. Stahl's brigade had no time to get their guns, and, of course, could not help repel the enemy, and we had to get out. About that time Col. Rich ardson was painfully wounded in the shoulder and was never with the regiment again.

housebreaking, a lawyer said: "Your honor, I submit that my client did not break into the commissary at all. He found the commissary window open, and merely inserted his right arm and removed the biscuits. client's arm is not himself, and I fall to see how you can punish the whole individual for an offense committed by one of his limbs."

"That argument," said the judge.
"is very well put. Following it logically, I sentence the defendant's arm to three months in the Old Capitol prison. He can accompany it or not,

as he chooses.' The defendant smiled, and with his advocate's assistance unscrewed his government cork arm and, leaving it on a camp stool, walked out.

A stranger in Rahway, N. J., bought a bag of potatoes and a 15-pound ham at a grocery store the other day and left them on the back doorstep of an aged resident named Thompson Thorne. BIG EATERS HAVE BAD KIDNEYS AND BACKACHE

Take a Glass c. Salts at Once if Your Back Is Hurting or Kidneys and Bladder Trouble You.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer

th sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time - Adv
